Dr. G. H. Jennings, Mrs. P. C. B. Bles and Daniel F. Cline, the committee to select and erect Griswold's honor roll have with great care and little effort, secured the full list of names which will be cast upon the tablet. The committee also has been notified of any error which appears in the list as printed below. The idea of placing six bronze tablets on the monument at Griswold, Conn., has been abandoned for the reason that Mr. Jennings is not wholly in favor of such action. The lawn in front of the Slater library has been selected by the committee as the best place for the tablets as being pleasing to the people of the town.

Worcester, Mass., papers note that Henry S. Haselden has lifted the last stake from the book, has quadded out the last line and now is going to leave for a while. For 42 years he has been a printer for the Royal Worcester Corset company. The 24th of this month he will be 55 years old, and he figures the time since when he should lay aside the implements of the printer's trade and get the ink off his fingers. His birthday will probably find him in Florida, for he left yesterday to make his home with his son in Tampa. Mr. Haselden was born and bred in South Carolina. He became acquainted with Miss Helen Rogers, a native of Monson and a niece of T. C. Bates of Worcester. They were married in February, 1881.

He's not going to depend on anybody to go south with him. He will go by train to New York, from there to Jacksonville by boat and to Tampa by train. He has a daughter in Worcester, Mrs. Mary L. Spring, a teacher in the Grafton street school. Mr. Haselden's wife died May 29. A son, Dr. Charles P. Haselden, is in Berlin, Germany, and at one time was dentist to former Emperor William. A daughter, Mrs. A. J. Wallace, lives in Norwich, Conn. His son, Harry, with whom Mr. Haselden will make his home, formerly was electrical superintendent for 23 years for the Whitin Machine company in Whitinville. Afterwards he went to Florida, became charmed with the country and bought a farm there.

Mrs. F. H. Gilbert was most industriously celebrating her birthday last week
